AHRMM NEWS

AHRMM20+ Virtual Conference Registration is Now Open

There has never been a more compelling time for the health care supply chain community to come together and combine our resources and abilities to address the COVID-19 crisis. That's why AHRMM invites you to join your colleagues at the AHRMM20+ Virtual Conference, September 22 - October 8, where you will discuss the latest leading practices and learn how other organizations are tackling the same challenges that your organization faces with innovative approaches.

During this three-week virtual conference, you will participate in interactive learning pavilions, keynotes and breakout sessions, network with other supply chain professionals in similar roles and suppliers from around the country. You'll be able to visit the virtual exhibit hall and discover what exhibitors are doing to define the health care supply chain landscape and deliver innovative solutions to care.

Now that the event is virtual, it's even easier to join from the comfort of your own home or office!

The Provider Perspective on Building Supply Chain Resiliency (Re-engineering the Health Care Supply Chain: CQO Thought Leader Discussion Series)

Health care supply chain resiliency is interdependent upon the resiliency of providers, data accuracy, and collaboration with manufacturers and distributors. In the second webinar of the CQO Thought Leader Discussion Series, hear provider panelists discuss their post-pandemic approach their business continuity programs, working with non-traditional buyers, diversifying their suppliers and the increased focus on supply chain analytics.

Watch On Demand

Health care supply chain professionals play a critical role in driving high quality care, at a more affordable cost, to deliver greater value to patients; this is the essence of the Cost, Quality and Outcomes (CQO). To achieve this, you must monitor and measure the health of your supply chain.

AHRMM has developed the AHRMM Keys for Supply Chain Excellence – twelve essential Key Performance Indicators (KPIs) that every health care supply chain should be measuring – to help you unlock greater potential in supply chain management. The Keys are a way for your organization to evaluate its supply chain performance over time in fundamental areas.

The AHRMM Keys will help you:

- initiate continuous process improvement dialogue with key stakeholders

- demonstrate supply chain performance
- change the conversation with the C-suite to make supply chain more strategic partners
- unlock health care supply chain excellence
- operate from the intersection of CQO

These initial AHRMM Keys are the most basic metrics and focus in the areas of finance and operations. Additional phases will build and expand on this foundation. Check out the AHRMM Keys today and open the door to performance improvement and supply chain success.
